Cholestamin is the power of crude red sour grape, northern Pacific kelp, garlic, and whole food cumin seed powder. Cumin helps stimulate the flow of bile. Crude red sour grape is rich in flavonoids. It also contains natural-source resveratrol and polyphenols. The northern Pacific wild kelp and wild Mediterranean spices provide additional nutrients that make Cholestamin an ideal addition to any healthy diet.* Cocona, a South American fruit, has been studied for its powers in cholesterol and triglyceride support.*
